

Manoj Gopalakrishna

Chief Executive Officer of HCL Healthcare

Manoj, a management professional and a Wharton alumnus, has been working in the Indian health care industry over the last twenty years. Over these two decades he had the unique opportunity of addressing the health challenges facing India as a leader of a global and Indian companies in the for profit and non-profit sectors. Before joining HCL Avitas family, he was heading the South Asia of operations of Becton Dickinson and Company, a global medical technology company. In that role, he drove growth through shared value creation, expansion of local manufacturing of medical devices and operational excellence. He was also responsible for creating programs in the areas of Infection Control, HIV Treatment and Monitoring, TB Diagnosis and Stem Cell research. Prior to his career with BD, Manoj held positions of increasing responsibilities with Hindustan Latex Limited (HLL), a Government of India enterprise. He led various programs and collaborations enabling HLL's diversification from a contraceptive company to a health care company.